Attracting new members to AWA

Since the changes in AF organization and structure, the AF Weather community has lost the sense of community and belonging we had in the past. We're looking for ideas on how to gain new members from the Active Duty folks or those who have retired over the last several years. If you are near a base and have access to or work with active duty members please spread the word about the AWA.

If you have ideas on how to spread the word and gain some new members, please let us know!

Looking for any WWII or Korean War AWA Veterans

We received this inquiry recently:

My name is Michael Naya, Jr., and I am a social studies teacher from Kenilworth, New Jersey. For over ten years I have been interviewing Great Depression survivors, World War II and Korean War veterans. I have been doing this as I write historical articles and publish my research/interviews in newsletters, magazines, and military historical associations.

The reason why I am reaching out to the Air Weather Association is because I was wondering if there are any surviving veterans from the World War II or Korean War era capable of granting an interview. I understand that it has been eighty-one years since the close of World War II however, I would appreciate any and all help.” swaneyb4@aol.com

Farmer's Almanac Winter Forecasts

We're in Meteorological Fall now so thoughts of Winter are already in many minds. The Farmer's Almanac and Old Farmer's Almanac have different views of what's coming while other outlooks are for a very snowy Winter across the middle of the U.S. but the Northeast being without much snow. What's your outlook?
